Anjana Narain to Lead Seqirus Influenza Vaccines Business

CSL Limited today named Ms Anjana Narain, a seasoned leader in vaccines and biopharmaceuticals, as Executive Vice President and General Manager of its Seqirus business, one of the world's largest influenza vaccines providers, effective 1 August.

She will replace Gordon Naylor, who announced his retirement earlier this year.

"In leading Seqirus, Anjana brings diverse, broad-based experiences as a well-established global industry leader," said CSL CEO & Managing Director Mr. Paul Perreault. "Anjana has focused on protecting public health throughout her career which will be important in continuing to advance Seqirus' differentiated technologies and further grow its market reach. I look forward to working with Anjana and the rest of our management team in executing our strategy and continuing to sustainably grow our global business."

Narain, 52, has a track record of strategic vision and strong leadership that has delivered industry-leading performance and sustainable growth. Narain has extensive global experience, living and working across three continents including North America, Europe and Asia. She brings 27 years of experience with major pharmaceutical companies such as GSK, Merck, and Bayer.

For nine years, Narain led major businesses at GSK including global influenza commercialisation, US respiratory biologics and general management of vaccines, primary care and HIV. She was a member of the global vaccines commercial leadership team and the intercontinental leadership team. At Merck, Narain held progressive leadership roles in the US and global biopharmaceuticals and vaccines. She started her career at Miles (now Bayer) in the US. Her leadership in inclusion and diversity and building a strong talent pipeline has received industry peer recognition.

Narain is a graduate of the Harvard Business School's General Management Program and has served on several industry association boards. She earned her Bachelor of Arts in English from RG College in India and her Masters of Business Administration from the University of New Haven in the US.

“As a global leader in influenza prevention, Seqirus is well positioned to deliver sustainable growth,” said Narain. “I am excited to lead an organisation that is on the front line in protecting public health around the world.”
