OPERATIONAL HIGHLIGHTS

- Signs multi-game licence deal with Warner Bros. Interactive utilising globally recognisable IP^
- Signs extensions of Work for Hire development agreements with 2K and Meta Platforms, Inc.
- Second Port Melbourne studio (PlaySide 508) opened
- Appointment of Sophie Karzis as Non-Executive Director^^

UPGRADED OUTLOOK

- FY24 revenue guidance upgraded to $60-65m (prev: $55-60m)
- FY24 EBITDA expected to be between $11-13m (unaudited 1H24: $12.2m)

We are very proud of the quarter we have been able to deliver for shareholders, with record levels of revenue, earnings and cash. This has been achieved despite the backdrop of widespread industry layoffs, which prompted us to tread carefully when considering expansion plans and forming expectations regarding our financial outlook.

This calendar year marks the start of the next phase of our expansion, with work commencing on a new PC/Console title for Warner Bros. Interactive using one of its premier IPs. Our teams are absolutely thrilled about the slate of titles we are working on across PC/Console, mobile and VR and I look forward to sharing more with you as the year progresses.

MANAGEMENT COMMENTARY

ORIGINAL IP ($11.1M REVENUE)

Original IP game revenues were at record levels for the second quarter in a row, and are running at roughly 50% of group revenues on a year-to-date basis, which is consistent with our prior guidance. Our Dumb Ways to Die portfolio of mobile titles continues to perform strongly, and recent licensing deals with Meta and Netflix also contributed to its momentum.

Development on Project Phoenix is progressing well and we are pleased to reveal its title, Kill Knight. In the next few weeks we will release an official announcement trailer, and the game will have a dedicated page on the Steam store. We continue to target a launch date later this calendar year.

The external studios working on our Publishing investments in PC titles Thrive: Heavy Lies the Crown and Dynasty of the Sands continue to track in line with their agreed development milestones.

A demo for medieval city-builder Thrive: Heavy Lies the Crown is expected to feature in Steam's Next Fest in February. This is an important catalyst in building consumer anticipation and wish lists for the game, as well as providing useful feedback in the final stages of its development.

An announcement trailer for our indie PC/Console title Kill Knight will be released shortly, with a targeted launch date later this calendar year

WARNER BROS. DEAL MARKS THE NEXT PHASE OF OUR GROWTH PLANS

In December 2023 we signed a multi-game license agreement with Warner Bros. Interactive, which has provided PlaySide with a highly recognisable intellectual property under license for the purpose of developing two PC/Console game titles. Development on the first title has commenced.

This deal was more than a year in the making, and plans for elevating our presence in the PC/Console space stretch back even further than that. Given the multi-year commitment that game development requires, one of the things we have been constantly challenged by is ensuring that our aspirations are sufficiently large enough that they continue to 'make sense' for the business by the time the games are launched.

For example, licensing deals to make mobile titles using established movie franchise IP, the reliance on a publisher to part-fund development of our first PC title, and an influencer-marketing led approach to driving interest in our second PC title made a lot of sense back in 2021 when the business had less than 100 staff and annual revenue of $10m. Today PlaySide has record levels of cash, more than 300 staff and significantly enhanced capabilities in PC/Console that require us to aim higher in terms of the scope and revenue potential of the games we make.

MANAGEMENT COMMENTARY

Having seriously considered a number of opportunities to mark our expansion into larger PC/Console titles over the last eighteen months, another challenge has been to ensure that the business was sufficiently resourced to give us the freedom to commit to the best projects we could identify. From a cash perspective, the success of the Dumb Ways franchise has been a meaningful contributor to this, as has a growing pipeline of Work for Hire projects. From an operating perspective, we have made some strong senior hires in our Original IP teams as well as promoting several long-standing employees in the business into positions that will see them play a major role in the delivery of the next slate of titles.

The initial term of the agreement with Warner Bros. Interactive expires five years after the release of the second title, which means that we will be involved with this IP for much of the next decade. We look forward to being able to announce specifics regarding the IP and the first title in a joint marketing statement later in the June half this year.

WORK FOR HIRE ($9.6M REVENUE)

Work for Hire activity continued at record levels during the quarter. Group cash receipts were $2.3m higher than reported revenue, which reflects the receipt of outstanding milestones billed in the prior quarter. In recent weeks we secured another extension of our development work for Meta Platforms as well as an extension of our work with 2K. Partly offsetting this, Skydance has elected not to continue with a project that we were awarded a co-development role on in April 2023. Pleasingly, PlaySide staff were able to be reallocated to other active projects and the net effect is an upgrade to our FY24 revenue guide. Work for Hire personnel remain fully utilised.

In the next couple of months our Business Development team will be travelling to the DICE Summit in Las Vegas and Game Developers Conference in San Francisco to pursue further opportunities for Work for Hire, Publishing and Original IP.

OUTLOOK

A major focus in the second half is the ramp-up of development activity on the first title using Warner Bros. Interactive IP. While most of the staff required for a project of this nature are already 'in the building' prior to signing, we believe the nature of the project (once made public) will enable us to selectively add more talent to the business.

As a studio we are also mindful of the need to complement our aspirations for developing larger game titles with a regular cadence of new releases across PC/Console, mobile and VR. Our Dumb Ways, Mobile and Publishing teams remain active in this regard.

GUIDANCE

We now expect FY24 revenues of $60-65m compared to our prior guide of $55-60m, which reflects recent increases to our Work for Hire pipeline. At the midpoint, this implies 63% growth on pcp and a 58/42 half-on-half revenue split.

Given the likelihood of a first half revenue skew and higher average headcount in the second half, we expect 2HFY24 EBITDA to be roughly breakeven and guide for FY24 EBITDA to be in the range of $11-13m.
