Melbourne, Victoria: Alcidion Group Limited (ASX:ALC) today advises it has been selected as the preferred EPR supplier by North Cumbria Integrated Care NHS Foundation Trust (NCIC) for its new Electronic Patient Record (EPR) system. North Cumbria is located in the north of the UK and forms part of the North East and North Cumbria (NENC) Integrated Care System (ICS). They provide hospital and community health care for approximately half a million people across two acute care hospitals, eight community-based hospitals, eight Integrated Care Communities (ICC) and a number of support staff locations over a large geographical footprint, working collaboratively with primary care networks, including 39 General Practices and an out of hours GP service.

Alcidion will deploy their flagship Miya Precision platform, encompassing a full suite offering including Silverlink PCS, which is already live at the Trust. The solution will provide clinicians real-time access to patient records whilst streamlining patient flow and improving clinical decision-making processes.

Following a competitive tender process, we will now finalise the contract prior to commencing deployment of Miya during Financial Year 2025 (Jan-March). The contract process also requires business case approval and is expected to complete in early Q3 Financial Year 2025 (Jan-March).

Alcidion Group Managing Director, Kate Quirke, said: “We are excited to build upon our existing relationship with NCIC by being selected as their preferred EPR supplier. Having been the supplier of their Patient Administration System for over 8 years we are now able to continue our relationship by bringing the full Miya Precision capabilities, alongside our partner applications, to deliver a full electronic patient record, accessible across NCIC. The Alcidion approach of providing an integrated, modular EPR offering allows NCIC to develop their existing digital footprint, protecting their existing investments and allowing them to realise the benefits of additional clinical capabilities such as electronic noting and integrated observations through integration with a number of existing systems. At a time when the healthcare system is under enormous pressure, we see this increased speed to deliver value as a real opportunity for our customers.”

NCIC Dr Adrian Clements, Executive Medical Director, added: “We are pleased to have selected Alcidion as our preferred EPR provider on what is a significant advancement for North Cumbria in modernising our technological offering to provide a better service and experience for our patients, whilst also significantly increasing our digital maturity as a Trust. Over the last few months, many of us have spent a great amount of time evaluating the various Electronic Patient Record systems in order to reach the correct conclusion to help us implement the best possible dynamic EPR system. I feel assured and confident that selecting Alcidion will allow us to implement an EPR that enables high quality patient care, improves clinical safety and saves clinicians’ valuable time.”
