Who Dat shut in due to Hurricane Francine

LLOG, Operator of the Who Dat assets, has advised that it is actively monitoring Hurricane Francine relative to operations in the Who Dat area. As a precautionary measure, LLOG has shut-in all the Who Dat wells and evacuated the platform. Drilling at Who Dat South has also been suspended. It is currently anticipated that Who Dat will be shut in for approximately a week, depending on the trajectory and severity of the hurricane.

The condition of the Floating Production System and export pipeline system availability will be assessed once the hurricane passes, and startup timing will then be advised.
