Gianmarco Biagi, Vection’s Managing Director, commented:

“In the first half of FY25 there was a robust improvement in company performance, with sales growth, a significant improvement in EBITDA and a reduction in debt, highlighting ACCELERATING THE PATH TO PROFITABILITY. In the first half of FY25, Vection continued to build on its vision of bridging the physical and digital worlds through immersive, AI-driven solutions. Our portfolio—encompassing 3D, Virtual Reality (“VR”), Mixed Reality (“MR”), Augmented Reality (“AR”), Artificial Intelligence (“AI”), and broader ICT capabilities—has further demonstrated its versatility and impact across multiple industries and regions.

Building on the progress made in FY24, our primary focus during this half-year was on integrating generative AI capabilities following the proposed acquisition of The Digital Box (“TDB”) and expanding into new market segments with strategic partners such as Dell Technologies, KIOSK Embedded Systems, and SolidWorld. These developments underscore our drive to deliver end-to-end spatial computing solutions at scale, assisting clients in reducing costs, accelerating time-to-market, and attaining deeper operational insights.

Adding TDB’s Algho platform to our ecosystem has significantly broadened our cross-selling and product development capabilities, reinforcing the synergy between 3D visualisation, generative AI, and spatial computing. We are already witnessing positive momentum in recurring revenue streams, reflecting the growing appetite for subscription-based solutions in complex enterprise environments.

Our leadership enhances this half-year by appointing Mr. Marco Landi, former worldwide President of Apple Computers, as Independent Non-Executive Chair, and Mr. Cameron Petricevic as Independent Non-Executive Director, adding valuable industry insight and global expertise to the Board. This positions Vection to maintain a strong technological edge while aligning our strategic vision with evolving market dynamics.

As we move forward, we aim to enhance and broaden our INTEGRATEDXR[®] ecosystem by incorporating sophisticated generative AI and spatial computing features. We see the potential for Vection's healthcare, defence, retail, and manufacturing solutions growing swiftly, driven by an increasing demand for immersive, data-rich experiences.

We enter the second half of FY25 confident in the market's growing appetite for AI-powered 3D solutions. Vection's commitment to innovation, strategic partnerships, and customer-centric digital transformation underscores our potential to drive long-term sustainable growth and shareholder value."

FINANCIAL PERFORMANCE OVERVIEW:

In the first half of 2025, despite the traditionally low seasonality in sales, Vection achieved significant improvements across all economic performance indicators (revenue and EBITDA) compared to the same period last year. This was driven by strategies to reduce fixed and variable costs, the commencement of sales and platform scalability, and a steady increase in organic sales. Furthermore, investments in R&D, platform development, and organisational and commercial expansion continued to ensure sustained growth, particularly in international markets, while securing key recognition and forming strategic alliances with major international companies.

1H FY25 revenue of $12.6m was up 15% vs pcp of $10.9m. Including the acquisition of TDB, the pro-forma revenue was $16.3m, up 11% vs pcp of $14.7m. Pro forma recurring revenue was 34% of 1H FY25 revenue.

Vection reported an EBITDA loss of $(2.3)m. 1H FY25 Pro-forma EBITDA was $(2.1)m.

Vection reported a positive Normalised EBITDA of $55k, demonstrating significant improvement from 1H FY24, when it was $(4.2)m, due to the scalability of sales and the reduction of both variable and fixed costs.

Other financial liabilities totalled $5.6 million, corresponding to the monetary value of the performance share-based issuance related to the acquisition of Inversion (ASX: 5 September 2023). This liability is not cash in nature.

Total debt is $10.0m, comprising of $6.4m secured Invoice financing and $3.6m of bank loans

Net operating cashflow of $(4.3)m before investing cashflow of $(3.2)m, and financing cashflow of $2.9m. Expenses included product and structured investment policies, M&A and integration of AI, and the development of appliances and other business lines growth.

Debt of $10m at 31 December 2024 comprised of $6.4m secured Invoice financing and $3.6m of bank loans. Other financial liabilities totalling $5.6 million correspond to the monetary value of the performance share-based issuance related to the acquisition of Inversion (ASX: 5 September 2023).

The Company had a closing cash balance of 3.1m and net assets of $8.7m at 31 December 2024. Earnings per share were $(0.29) increasing 63% vs pcp of $(0.8).

OUTLOOK

Vection plans to continue scaling its AI-driven and XR solutions through subscription-based models for an expanding global client base. Building on its proven ability to deploy advanced AI and XR tools in complex environments, the company is well positioned to seize opportunities in healthcare, defence, retail, and manufacturing—where data-driven innovation, user
