

Notification of Unauthorised Data Access

14 October 2025 – Ansell Limited (ASX:ANN) (“Ansell”) advises it recently identified unauthorised access to certain sets of company data. There has been no disruption to operations.

The unauthorised access via licensed third-party software vulnerabilities was limited and did not impact the broader company environment. As soon as this was detected, we took immediate containment action.

Initial findings indicate that a majority of the accessed data consisted of non-sensitive business information. A portion, however, does contain confidential transactional data or personally identifiable information.

The security and privacy of all information entrusted to us is our highest priority.

Ansell is working with experts from across the cyber industry and will coordinate with relevant government agencies and regulators, including the Australian National Office of Cyber Security and the National Cyber Security Coordinator, on our response.

This announcement was authorised for release by the Board of Directors of Ansell Limited.
