Emyria Limited (ASX: EMD) ("Emyria", or the "Company"), a leader in delivering evidence-based mental health treatments, is pleased to announce that Medibank Private Ltd (ASX: MPL) has commenced funding for screened and eligible customers to access Emyria's Treatment-Resistant Depression (TRD) and Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD) programs in association with Avive Health.

Under a multi-year funding agreement, eligible Medibank customers admitted to Avive Clinic Brisbane can now access Empax's psychiatrist-led, psychotherapy-based trauma programs, reducing financial barriers for patients with complex mental health needs.

The programs mark the first expansion of Emyria's insurer-backed services beyond Western Australia¹, establishing an Empax clinic on Australia's East Coast and advancing the Company's national growth strategy.

While individual treatment plans vary, similar programs delivered by Emyria typically involve a course of care valued between $20,000 and $30,000, highlighting the scale and clinical depth of each program. The Medibank agreement has an initial term of 24 months and includes a standard termination clause allowing either party to provide 90 days' notice.

Addressing Australia's Mental Health Burden

Australia continues to face a significant and growing mental health challenge with nearly half of all Australians expected to experience a mental health condition during their lifetime³. Among these, Treatment-Resistant Depression (TRD) and Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD) remain two of the most severe and persistent conditions, contributing disproportionately to national healthcare costs and lost productivity.

Patients living with TRD and PTSD frequently require specialist, multidisciplinary care combining psychiatric, psychological, and somatic interventions. These services can be fragmented or inaccessible through the public system and many patients struggle to afford comprehensive, evidence-based care or experience long waiting times that delay treatment and recovery.

By integrating hospital-based programs with insurer-backed funding, Emyria and Medibank are helping to address one of the most pressing healthcare inequities in Australia: the lack of affordable, coordinated, and sustained treatment for complex mental health disorders.

Scaling Proven Care Models

Emyria's Empax Centres combine clinical excellence, data-driven delivery, and insurer collaboration to create a scalable model for high-quality mental health care. These centres operate within licensed hospital environments, ensuring rigorous clinical oversight while enabling multidisciplinary teams to deliver structured treatment programs that meet both regulatory and insurer standards.

The Empax model is distinguished by its emphasis on psychotherapy-led care supported by robust data collection and analysis. Each treatment pathway generates longitudinal clinical data, enabling Emyria to evaluate patient outcomes, optimise care protocols, and share insights that can inform broader health-system innovation.

Collaborations between Emyria and major private health insurers like Medibank reduce out-of-pocket costs for eligible patients and demonstrate that effective, evidence-based mental health treatment can be delivered sustainably and at scale. The success of this approach positions Empax as a replicable framework for national adoption across multiple hospital partners and jurisdictions.

National Growth Outlook

Building on the success of its insurer-funded programs in Perth and now Brisbane, Emyria intends to accelerate the national rollout of its Empax Centres and funded treatment programs. The Company continues to assess opportunities with additional hospital partners and insurers to expand its network of multidisciplinary care sites across metropolitan and regional Australia.

This expansion forms a central part of Emyria's strategy to establish a national footprint of insurer-backed, hospital-integrated mental health services supported by real-world clinical data. As the demand for measurable, outcomes-driven care continues to grow, Emyria's platform positions the Company as a long-term partner for payors, providers, and policymakers seeking scalable solutions to Australia's mental health burden.

Emyria Executive Chairman, Greg Hutchinson, commented:

"We're pleased to extend our agreement with Medibank and bring our insurer funded Empax programs to Queensland. This represents an important step forward for patients, clinicians, and the broader health system.

Our goal has always been to make world-class, evidence-based mental health care accessible to every Australian who needs it. By integrating insurer funding into high-quality hospital programs, we're significantly reducing financial barriers that have historically limited access to comprehensive trauma and mood disorder treatments.

With funded programs now operating across two states, Emyria is demonstrating that our data-driven model of care can scale nationally. This expansion will enable more Australians to access effective treatment for complex mental health conditions while contributing valuable data to help modernise and strengthen Australia's healthcare system."
