Solstice Managing Director and CEO, Nick Castleden, commented:

"The Placement was comprehensively bid, and we are delighted by the level of support received from both new and existing investors. The strong institutional support will enable us to accelerate our exploration programs at what we believe is one of Australia's most compelling copper growth stories.

"We would like to thank shareholders for their continued support in this journey. Being able to carry out our first significant Placement since listing at five times the IPO price reflects the significant interest in Nanadie, and we look forward to delineating what has potential to be a company-making asset.

"With the RC rig now on its way to site and a diamond rig scheduled to arrive mid-month, we are entering an exciting period for the Company. Over the coming months, we will continue to explore the open-ended high-grade mineralisation at Nanadie and look to materially expand the Mineral Resource over time."
