Continued Commercial Momentum

Winter Burrow previously generated approximately A$3 million in gross revenue within just 20 days of its global launch across Steam, Xbox and Nintendo Switch platforms (ASX: 2 December 2025), supporting Noodlecake's strategy of extending commercially proven titles across additional storefronts and revenue channels.

Since then, Winter Burrow generated approximately A$2.7 million in additional revenue, bringing cumulative gross revenue to approximately A$5.7 million to date, alongside more than 700,000 cumulative player downloads, purchases and activations across supported storefronts, including approximately 475,000 Xbox Game Pass activations.

The title also recently participated in Steam's Daily Deal promotion, a platform-curated campaign featuring selected titles prominently across Steam storefront discovery channels and promotional placements, contributing to increased sales activity, wishlist growth and broader visibility across Xbox and Nintendo Switch platforms.

During the first week of the promotional campaign, Winter Burrow generated approximately US$93,000 (~A$143,000) in gross Steam revenue from approximately 8,000 units sold, with average daily revenue increasing approximately 894% relative to the preceding comparable period. Steam wishlists now exceed 520,000 despite ongoing post-launch conversions and recent promotional activity, supporting continued storefront visibility for the title.

Promotional campaign performance may not be indicative of ongoing sales activity, however recent promotional campaigns have contributed to increased storefront visibility, player engagement and sales activity across Steam, Nintendo Switch and other supported storefronts during the period.

“ Winter Burrow has continued attracting players well beyond its original launch period, and the recent Steam promotion demonstrated the title's ongoing visibility across major storefronts. ”

Bringing the game onto mobile is an exciting next step for the team and creates an opportunity to introduce Winter Burrow to a significantly broader audience while continuing to support the existing PC and console community.

Winter Burrow Heads to Mobile

Winter Burrow will soon be available for pre-orders across Apple App Store and Google Play storefronts ahead of its planned mobile release targeted for 30 September 2026. The mobile expansion extends the title beyond its existing Steam, Xbox and Nintendo Switch audience and into the global mobile gaming market – which represents approximately 55% of the estimated A$158 billion global gaming industry revenue opportunity¹ – providing additional long-tail revenue opportunities for the title.

The cozy woodland survival game has been redesigned and optimised for touchscreen gameplay while preserving the exploration, crafting and survival systems that helped establish Winter Burrow as a success across PC and console storefronts.

The release forms part of Noodlecake's broader strategy of extending selected indie titles across multiple storefronts and device ecosystems, including mobile, PC, console and cloud gaming platforms, while also supporting potential future participation across Google Play's expanding cross-device and PC gaming ecosystem initiatives.
