Resolution of ASIC matters

WiseTech Global Ltd (ASX: WTC; WiseTech; the Company) provides an update on the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC) investigation regarding alleged trading in WiseTech shares, which was the subject of an announcement on 28 October 2025.

ASIC has informed the Company that it has concluded its investigation in respect of Richard White and two other current WiseTech employees, and that it has issued no-action letters to them. The no-action letters confirm that ASIC will not take any enforcement action against Richard White or those two employees. ASIC has indicated that an investigation is ongoing in respect of another individual who is not an employee of the Company.

Additionally, ASIC has also informed the Company that it has concluded a governance investigation which commenced in late 2024. ASIC has also issued a no-action letter to the Company confirming that it does not intend to take any enforcement action in respect of that investigation.

Independent Chair of WiseTech, Raelene Murphy, said: "The resolution of these ASIC matters is another step forward for the Company as we apply our full focus on creating long term value for shareholders."
